2. Introduction

At Begdale House School, we keep our site safe and secure so that pupils, staff and visitors are protected and our pupils can learn in a calm and settled environment. A secure site is part of how we safeguard children. This policy sets out how we control access to our buildings and grounds, how we keep the premises safe, and how we prepare for and respond to a security threat.

We are a special school, and we design our security to fit our pupils. Some of our pupils become distressed and may try to leave a room, a building or the site. Our arrangements keep them safe without making the school feel like a locked or institutional place. We aim for a site that is secure, welcoming and therapeutic at the same time.

3. Aim & Scope

This policy applies to all staff, governors, pupils, parents and carers, visitors and contractors at Begdale House School, and to the whole of our site, including buildings, grounds and any premises we use off site. It aims to:

- Keep the site secure and control who can enter our buildings and grounds.
- Make sure the premises are safe, well maintained and fit for our pupils.
- Reduce the risk from intruders, violence and terrorism, and prepare a clear response.
- Balance strong security with a calm, welcoming and therapeutic environment.

It is read with our Health and Safety, Safeguarding, Supervision of Pupils and Critical Incidents policies (EDU.POL.045), which carry the detail of the related procedures.

4. Abbreviations and Definitions

Site security. The arrangements that control who can enter our buildings and grounds and that keep the premises safe.

Access control. How we manage entry to and exit from the site, for example through locked doors, gates and signing in.

Lockdown. Securing the building and keeping everyone inside and away from a threat. Invacuation means bringing people in from outside as part of a lockdown.

Public protection procedures. Under Martyn's Law, the procedures staff follow if there is reason to suspect a terrorist act, covering evacuation, moving people to safety, controlling who can enter or leave, and communication.

Standard duty premises. Under Martyn's Law, premises where it is reasonable to expect that 200 or more people may be present from time to time. Larger premises where 800 or more may be present are enhanced duty premises.

5. Policy Content

5.1 Principles and Approach

Our approach rests on the following principles.

Secure and therapeutic. We keep the site secure in a way that fits our pupils and keeps the school calm and welcoming.

Safeguarding first. Site security is part of safeguarding, and we treat it that way.

We know who is here. We control access and we can account for everyone on site. We plan for the worst and practise. We assess the risks to our premises, including terrorism, and we rehearse our response.

Security is integrated. Our counterterrorism, fire, lockdown and safeguarding procedures work as one system, not separate ones.

Proportionate. We match our security to the real level of risk to our site, and we keep it under review.

5.2 Premises and Site Security in Practice

Controlling access to the site

At Begdale House School, we control who can enter our buildings and grounds. External doors and gates are kept secure, entry is through a controlled point, and the boundary is maintained so that people cannot enter or leave unseen. We balance this with the needs of our pupils, so that the site is secure without feeling like a locked institution. The arrangements for our site are set out in the annex.

Visitors and contractors

Every visitor and contractor sign in, shows identification where appropriate, is given a badge, and is supervised in line with our Safeguarding Policy (EDE.POL.002). We check the identity and, where required, the vetting of contractors and visiting professionals before they have any contact with pupils. Contractors working on site follow our health and safety and safeguarding rules, and we manage their work so that it does not put pupils at risk.

Knowing who is on site

We keep an accurate record of everyone on site, including pupils, staff, visitors and contractors, so that we can account for everyone in an evacuation or lockdown. This works with our fire and emergency procedures and our Supervision of Pupils Policy (EDU.POL.043).

CCTV and surveillance

Where we use CCTV, we do so lawfully and proportionately to keep the site secure, and we manage the images in line with our Data Protection Policy. We make clear where CCTV is in use.

Keeping the premises safe and maintained

We keep our buildings and grounds safe, clean and properly maintained, in line with Part 5 of the Independent School Standards. We carry out regular premises checks, deal with hazards promptly, and keep records of inspections, servicing and repairs. The detail of premises health and safety is in our Health and Safety Policy (EDU.POL.038).

Counter-terrorism and Martyn's Law

We assess the risk of a terrorist act affecting our site and we put proportionate protective measures and procedures in place. The Terrorism (Protection of Premises) Act 2025, known as Martyn's Law, places duties on premises where 200 or more people may be present from time to time. At Begdale House School, we assess whether our site meets this threshold, including at events, and we apply the duty where it does. Whether or not the threshold is met, we adopt sensible protective security and public protection procedures as good practice, and we keep our assessment under review as the law comes into force.

Public protection procedures

If there is reason to suspect a terrorist act on or near our site, staff follow our public protection procedures. These cover getting people out by evacuation, bringing people in and securing the building by invacuation and lockdown, controlling who can enter or leave, and communicating quickly with everyone on site and with the emergency services. They are the same procedures we use for other serious threats, and the step-by-step response sits in our Critical Incidents Policy (EDU.POL.045) and emergency plan. We plan them with our pupils in mind so that they prompt a safe response rather than panic.

Public-facing events

When we hold an event that the public can attend, for example a performance, fair or sports fixture, we assess the additional security risk, plan access and supervision, and consider whether the event itself falls within Martyn's Law. The arrangements for each event are recorded with the event planning.

Lone working and out-of-hours security

We have arrangements to keep staff safe when they work alone or out of hours, and to keep the site secure when it is closed, including alarms and secure locking up. These arrangements are set out in the annex.

Pupils who try to leave the site

Given the needs of our pupils, some may try to leave the building or site when they are distressed. Our access control reduces the chance of this, and where a pupil has a known risk, we put an individual plan in place. Staff respond with relationship and de-escalation first. The full response to a pupil who is missing on site or who has left the site is in our Supervision of Pupils Policy (EDU.POL.043).

5.3 Recording, Monitoring and Reporting

Premises checks, servicing and security incidents are recorded, and any incident with a safeguarding dimension is recorded on CPOMS. Our premises and counter-terrorism risk assessments are documented and dated. Leadership reviews premises and security risks and incidents, reports to the proprietor and governors, and updates the risk assessments and this policy so that Begdale House School learns from each incident and from any change in the law.

The school undertakes an annual security risk assessment which includes visitor management, access control, lone working, site vulnerability and counter-terrorism considerations.

5.4 Equality and Inclusion

At Begdale House School, this policy is applied fairly and in line with the Equality Act 2010. We make sure our premises and security arrangements are accessible to disabled pupils, staff and visitors, and that they do not disadvantage any pupil. Our security is designed to keep pupils safe without restricting them more than is necessary. Any concern that this policy disadvantages a pupil should be raised with the headteacher.

7. Training Requirements

All staff are trained on access control, signing in and out, challenging strangers, and the lockdown and public protection procedures, as part of induction and regular updates. Staff receive counter-terrorism awareness training appropriate to their role, for example the nationally recognised Action Counters Terrorism training, and we rehearse our lockdown and public protection procedures so that staff and pupils can act quickly at Begdale House School.

8. Equality Impact Statement

All policies will be developed and implemented in a manner that promotes equality, diversity, and inclusion, ensuring fair and equitable treatment for all individuals. Policies must align with relevant equality legislation and reflect the expectations and standards set by our regulatory bodies. 11.1 Appendix A: School-Specific Annex

At Begdale House School, the following local arrangements apply:

- Site boundaries, gates and controlled entry points: Gates are always locked. Front gate has a call button, Begdale House School staff respond to this and greet visitors at the gate.
- Visitor and contractor sign-in and badging: Begdale House school staff greet visitors at the gate. Visitors are taken to the main office to sign in, where they will be given a visitors' badge. Contractors are also required to complete the contractors sign in sheet.
- CCTV locations and management: At Begdale House School we have CCTV cameras acting from the main building and the monitors are in the main office
- Lockdown signal and procedure: the evacuation is activated by smoke and fire alarms, and the meeting point is in the grounds of the school, the invacuation procedure is activated over the radio and is dependent on whether it is a Sheltering issue or a full lockdown.
- Whether the site meets the Martyn's Law threshold, and the public protection procedures: presently the Begdale numbers are significantly short of the 200 thresholds with the exception of the celebration day which is still short of numbers however robust security is in place with staff at the gate checking visitors before they reach the gates.
- Premises lead and senior individual for site security: All site security is primarily the responsibility of Elise Rout (Caretaker) and Kelly Wilshire (Associate headteacher).
- Out-of-hours security, alarms and locking up: At Begdale School the buildings are locked and alarmed when nobody is on site and is reactivated by cleaners when they come into the buildings after hours. The same staff members are largely responsible for opening the buildings in the morning. Elise Rout as well as Jo Murray (Headteacher) have their numbers on call in case of emergency with alarms.
- Pupils with an individual plan for leaving the site: At Begdale House School all students have individual risk assessments and if it is determined that leaving site is a risk too significant then they do not go off site. Shorter periods of time can also be introduced with slow transition to going off site have been advised. Also, every activity, trip or occasion where students are going off site have risk assessments which cover the students concerned.
